A Coffin From Hong Kong

A Coffin from Hong Kong is my third excursion into James Hadley Chase territory. This is a fairly standard, but good, PI tale of low-rent investigator Nelson Ryan, a man who takes it personally when he's framed for a murder he didn't commit. Ryan gets a call one day from a man named John Hardwick who wants to hire Ryan to follow his wife.

A Coffin from Hong Kong by James Hadley Chase

Released in the U.S. as "A Coffin From Hong Kong", this was one of a whole series of relatively low budget German noir/espionage/thriller type films made in the early to mid sixties. Although the scripting of these films is often trite to the point silliness, they are generally well acted, and usually set (though not filmed) someplace other than Germany, usually London or the U.S.
